Abstract:

The Historic Resource Study, Phase I, for Hubbell Trading Post National Historic Site will be a thorough and exhaustive research effort to collect data about the historic events within and related to the Hubbell Trading Post National Historic Site. The work will entail analyzing that data for potential use in the next phases, writing of the historic resource study, the unit's historic themes and contexts. The research will also identify significant sites within the historic site, through literature search, which will be more fully described and history written in phase III.
